

James A. Keyte

Director of Global Development, New York

+1.212.789.3668

James.Keyte@brattle.com

As the Director of Global Development, Mr. Keyte plays a lead role in growing Brattle’s worldwide competition practice and defining a new level of quality for economic consulting.

Prior to joining Brattle, Mr. Keyte spent more than twenty years as an antitrust partner at Skadden, where he handled a wide variety of litigations, transactions, and advisory matters across numerous industries. He led high-profile antitrust cases involving alleged price-fixing, monopolization, mergers, intellectual property licensing, and sports-related matters, including class actions. He was also involved in a number of high-profile mergers, several of which involved litigation challenges by the US Department of Justice (DOJ) and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

Mr. Keyte is also the Director of the Fordham Competition Law Institute (FCLI), which is in its 48th year and annually offers a three-day global antitrust conference for enforcers, academics, practitioners, and in-house counsel. In addition, he is an adjunct professor at Fordham Law School, where he teaches Antitrust in Big Tech. Mr. Keyte has published over 50 articles related to antitrust across a wide range of topics, most recently on comparative antitrust law and regulation relating to Big Tech. He is a former editor of Antitrust Law Journal and currently serves as editor of Antitrust Magazine. He holds a JD from Loyola Law School (Law Review) and a BA from Harvard University (cum laude).

At Brattle, Mr. Keyte is directly engaged in project oversight across all of Brattle’s competition and antitrust engagements, both in the US and globally. His extensive practical experience, along with his deep antitrust expertise, gives Brattle a unique perspective that adds enormous value to our expert engagements.

Practices

- Antitrust & Competition

Education

- Loyola Law School (Law review), JD
- Harvard University, BA (cum laude)